Library

One of the most precious skills we can give children to support them in getting school-ready and lifelong learners is a love of reading and enjoyment in books where children can choose through their session to visit our very own in-house library every time they are in setting if they wish. We have a whole room dedicated to not only our own books but books from the Library Service provided from Bedford Borough, where we share our love of reading with the children through developing book language and a wealth of more linguistically complex language, developing imaginative play and the skills for these children to write and illustrate their very own books! Through using this environment children also have access to a wealth of story sacks, using props to retell stories and develop a number of counting rhymes and chants using resources to support visually. We also celebrate seasons and festivals through displays to support children's understanding of the wider world around them. Children as young as two access the library across the week and learn the expectations of handling books by selecting and putting away their own books and choosing books to take out and explore further in the playrooms.
